New design Brita Vivreau Fill offers sustainable drinking water solution for hotels, restaurants, and offices

As the hospitality sector considers the challenge around meeting Carbon Budgets, finding ways of reducing carbon emissions will be paramount. One area to consider when looking at carbon outputs is to reduce the amount of single use plastic bottles at meetings, events and across all areas of banqueting in hotels and restaurants. Brita, distributed in Ireland by REL Group, has launched Brita Vivreau Fill, a powerful mains fed bottling system which allows for a dramatic reduction in single use plastic bottles throughout this sector. To mark the launch, NIHF members can avail of a special offer of 20% off a Brita Vivreau Fill unit and 20 free glass swing bottles.

Sustainability is at the heart of Brita Vivreau Fill. Simply making the switch from single-use plastic to a mains-fed water cooler is a great way to go green and save money. For example, switching 100 customers who each drink 1 litre of water a day from single use plastic bottled water, would instantly eliminate 506kg of plastic bottle waste per year. The ability for a business to use their own water source, avoid transportation and delivery charges makes a positive difference to operational costs and allows for a reduction in their carbon footprint.

With Italian design and German engineering, the Brita Vivreau Fill boasts some innovative features including TwinFilling which lets two bottles or glasses fill simultaneously and SmoothFinishing portion control meaning glasses and bottles fill without overflowing or supervision.

The dispense unit offers a range of ambient, still and sparkling water options and as hygiene has taken on even greater prominence in a covid environment, Brita Vivreau Fill is equipped with Thermal Gate, a thermal disinfection feature which means the dispense tap is automatically heated to over 125°C at regular intervals to ensure protection against any contamination from external sources without the use of chemicals.

Brita dispense and filtration products are distributed, installed and serviced exclusively in Ireland by Co. Carlow based REL Group.
