RECEPTIONIST AWARDS

WHAT IS IT?

Originally created in the 1970s and re-launched in 2004, this competition is about recognising the very best in customer service in a vital role for all hotels. Challenging, but fun, with great team building and personal development.

HOW TO ENTER

The competition takes place across three categories - two individual and one team. All entrants need to read the rules overleaf and complete an online entry form at nihf.co.uk by Friday 29th March.

Individual entrants are required to attend an assessment day on the morning of Tuesday 16th April in the Clayton Hotel Belfast. This day assesses skills in teambuilding, leadership, initiative and more. Candidates who progress from the morning assessment will be interviewed in the afternoon. A list of finalists will be invited to further interviews, which take place on Tuesday 23rd April.

The team competition judging is kept secret but following a series of mystery shops, a list of finalists is reached and a mystery shopper visits each premises to further assess the reception team. A full report is sent to all entrants after the competition.

There is no cost to enter either competition or for any judging but hotels are asked to reimburse the accommodation and food costs for the Mystery Shopping.

To enter, just complete the form at nihf.co.uk by 5pm on Friday 29th March.
